

Transcription

"Hello, Investigative Associates, this is H.R. Bigglesworth. You may remember me from the Lyttlewhakker case we worked on together awhile back. Well, I have a new mystery that I could use your help with. A young woman at the Darkmoor Academy has disappeared without a trace, right in the middle of the semester!

I'm afraid the local constabulary have their hands full dealing with the effects of those tremors that have been rocking the area, so I was authorized to bring you on board. The young woman's dorm room has been searched and personal items have been inventoried and tagged, and a couple of people related to the case have been interviewed, but we need you to take it from here. To be frank, I am stumped. And I am glad to have your expert eye to help find that young woman and see her returned, safe and sound.

Well, alrighty then. Much obliged!