

Suspect Brief

Orrin Jones

Mr. Jones is a high school science teacher from Jacksonville, FL. He was the winner of an essay-writing contest to be the first teacher to ever visit Mars. His students gave him a warm sendoff for his first trip into outer space. In fact, this is his first trip out of the state of Florida!

Rashid Williams

Mr. Williams is well-known to basketball fans for his on-court antics, playing with the Daytona Daleks. At 6'7" tall, Mr. Williams expressed concern before departure about the size of the staterooms on the Mars Shuttle. Mr. Williams will be playing an exhibition game against the local Mars basketball league.

Suspect Brief

Dana Rodriguez

Dr. Rodriguez is a professor of theoretical physics and cosmology. She is traveling with her husband Ross, for a 6-month sabbatical at the Mars Research Facility. Dr. Rodriguez was diagnosed 5 years ago with ALS, and has been a powerful voice for inclusion of the differently-abled in interplanetary travel.

Briana Hill

Ms. Hill is the most successful recording artist of the decade, responsible for the hits "Put a Moon Rock on It", "No Artificial Air", and "Stuck in a Time Loop Again". She will be performing a series of concerts on Mars station. She is traveling with her partner, Marion Hill, manager, Rosie Baker, and spiritualist, Edwin Smith.

Suspect Brief

Martin Green

Mr. Green is the assistant to Mars envoy Lance Mitchell. This is Mr. Green's 2nd trip to Mars, after he escorted a congressional delegation last year for an oversight visit to the Mars station. Mr. Green is traveling with his new wife, Winter, whom he married in a small private ceremony last month.

Natasha Mitchell

Ms. Mitchell is the daughter of Mars envoy Lance Mitchell, and is flying out to Mars to spend her summer break with her family. Natasha attends Stanford University, and is traveling with her best friend from college, Tia Brown.

The Home Office
IN THE NAME OF HUMANITY